We create better food preservation. Together.

At Huntsman Polyurethanes, we believe that working in true collaboration with customers is the only way to solve complex problems and find the solutions that will deliver real innovation. So, we strive with a passion and determination to build the deep understanding of our customers that's required to get to the heart of their needs and establish lasting partnerships. About 50% of the world's food would rot and waste without the insulated refrigeration which allows the storage, transportation and processing of perishable food under temperature controlled conditions. The thermal insulation and processing advantages of our MDI-based rigid polyurethane foam has led to it being specified by leading refrigerator manufacturers globally. Food is too precious to waste, so combine our knowledge of insulation with your cold chain expertise, and we'll create better food preservation... together.
